A photograph of a stone archway, likely a tunnel entrance or a bridge, built into a hillside. The arch is constructed from rough-hewn stones and is partially obscured by dense, green, leafy vegetation growing over it. The hillside above the arch is also covered in similar vegetation and some bare earth. The overall scene suggests a rural or natural setting.

A photograph of a flock of sheep in a rural landscape. In the foreground, several sheep are standing on green grass, looking towards the camera. Behind them is a low stone wall. In the background, there are large, leafy olive trees and a large, dark, textured structure that looks like a traditional oven or a large pot. The scene is brightly lit, suggesting a sunny day.
